

Silkstone Primary School is approaching its 50th year this summer, and we are keen to hear stories and anecdotes about the school, particularly the former Secondary Modern School. These photographs are from the 1960s and show images taken at the school and on school trips to Scotland.

The current Class 5 class are researching the history of the school, using information from the school diaries and other sources. Any photographs, stories or recollections about the school would be gratefully received, in the hope of presenting the findings at a community event.

If you have any information relating to the school, please send it via the school email, post or drop it into the school office at:
